Lebanese Fighting Worse

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — More fierce fighting in Lebanon's civil war was reported today, with 49 persons killed and 97 wounded, despite extension of the cease-fire until the end of April.

Police said the bodies of 26 persons killed earlier were also discovered. Clashes were reported around the edges of the Christian rectangle of mountainous land along the coast north of Beirut. This indicated leftist Moslem leader Kamal Jumblatt's forces were putting new pressure on their right-wing Christian foes in an attempt to force the election of a Christian president sympathetic to Jumblatt's political demands.

While agreeing to extension of the 10-day cease-fire, which was to have expired at noon today, Jumblatt warned that his forces would press on to military victory unless President Suleiman Franjeh's successor was elected soon.

"Unless Franjeh's replacement is completed shortly, we will have to decide the situation on the bases of a victor and a vanquished," he said. Franjeh and other right-wing Christian leaders are believed to support the candidacy of Elias Sarkis, governor of the central bank, while Jumblatt is expected to support Raymond Edde, a Christian at odds with Franjeh and his associates.

Some Palestinian guerrilla leaders also have indicated support for Edde, but Syria and the Saika guerrillas it controls oppose Edde, who with Jumblatt has criticized the growing Syrian intervention in Lebanon.

Parliament amended Lebanon's constitution Saturday to allow for Franjeh's replacement before his term expires Sept. 23. But Franjeh, the symbol of Christian resistance to Moslem demands for control of the political and economic system, could delay the election of his successor a month by refusing to sign the amendment.

Another leading Christian politician, Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, said he expected Franjeh to sign by next Thursday. But some observers predicted the president would delay while he tried to negotiate for the election of a man acceptable to him.

Meanwhile, sporadic fighting continued in downtown Beirut and in other parts of the country. Police said 56 persons were killed and 25 kidnaped Sunday.

Lebanese officials also reported that estimates of the losses in three bank robberies in Beirut this year total $50 million and that the losses were probably much more.

In all three robberies, the safe deposit vaults were looted. "Only the owners knew what was in the boxes," said one official. "It could be $50 million or it could be $100 million or more."

The biggest loss was reported to be at the British Bank of the Middle East. Estimates of the loss there started at $20 million, which would make it the largest bank robbery in history. Last week, the safe deposit vaults at the Banco di Roma and Bank Misr-Liban were cleaned out.

The robberies are believed to have been the work of radical Palestinian guerrillas, officials said.

Jumblatt charged that two more Syrian battalions have crossed into Lebanon, raising the total Syrian force in the country to between 5,000 and 6,000 men. No confirmation of his claim was available. Previously, the number of Syrian troops was estimated at about 2,000.

Jumblatt said he asked special U.S. envoy L. Dean Brown for an explanation of this "excessive Syrian military presence."

The U.S. government warned several times against foreign intervention, but when President Ford was asked Saturday about the reported Syrian troop movements, he said he didn't believe there has been "any rash action by any party so far," indicating tacit acceptance of Syrian military pressure on the Moslems.

Humphrey Talks Like Candidate

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Hubert Humphrey, sounding like a well-tested political race horse champing at the presidential bit, says he'd win in November if a deadlocked Democratic convention nominated him.

"If I'm a candidate I'll win. Make no mistake about it," the Minnesota senator declared.

Humphrey said he is not "seeking" the nomination. "I am not a candidate and I have said I am not. By that I mean I am not seeking the nomination for the presidency."

However, he added: "I have said should my party need me at the convention, I would consider it an honor to serve the party...I'm ready."

Humphrey also indicated he is letting up on his efforts to keep uncommitted delegates from announcing for him and said he would not let the schedules of announced presidential candidates dictate his own political appearances.

"In every state, there is someone who wants to file as uncommitted friendly to Humphrey. And I go around telling them 'please don't do that. Please don't do that.' Now I just simply say, 'Look if you want to do it, it's your business. I've got my business. I'll carry on.'"

Patty Hearst Sentencing Scheduled

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An apprehensive Patricia Hearst, facing sentencing for armed bank robbery, was reported willing to trade her secrets of the terrorist underground for leniency.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter, armed with a stack of psychiatric and probationary reports on Miss Hearst, had the option of imposing a maximum penalty of 25 years in prison or as light a punishment as simple probation at a sentencing hearing today.

"She's apprehensive, concerned, worried that the judge might sentence her to an institution," one of her attorneys, Al Johnson, said Sunday.

Johnson said he and chief defense counsel F. Lee Bailey would argue that the one-time kidnap victim has suffered enough. There was no indication what prosecutor James L. Browning Jr. would recommend.

"We're talking about a life which for all intents and purposes has been ruined," said Johnson. "There's no purpose in incarcerating her further." She has been behind bars since her arrest seven months ago, and that time will count toward any prison term.

Miss Hearst, who was convicted March 20, was not expected to say anything at the sentencing.

Sources have said that Miss Hearst, 22, has developed a lingering resentment of underground radicals who hid her during her months as a fugitive, blaming them in part for her predicament.

Bo Callaway Faces Questions

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate panel is seeking Howard H. Callaway's explanation of his role in efforts to win Forest Service approval to expand his financially troubled ski resort on federal land.

The former campaign manager for President Ford was to testify today before a Senate interior subcommittee which is trying to determine whether Callaway, while serving as Army secretary, improperly influenced the Forest Service into tentatively approving the expansion.

The decision overruled an earlier recommendation by Forest Service officials in Colorado urging denial of the request to expand Callaway's Crested Butte resort onto nearby federally owned Snodgrass Mountain. Callaway owns a controlling interest in the ski resort company.

A central issue is a meeting Callaway held in his Pentagon office with Forest Service and Agriculture Department officials on July 3, 1975, his last day as Army secretary.

The Forest Service is part of the Agriculture Department. The other three officials who attended that meeting have testified that Callaway argued for the expansion. But they also say they did not bow to any pressure from Callaway or their superiors.

Callaway resigned recently as Ford's campaign manager following published reports of the July 3 meeting.

His brother-in-law, Ralph O. Walton Jr., president of the ski resort firm, told the panel he felt "double crossed" upon learning in January 1975 that the Forest Service was considering denying the expansion.

"I felt the rug had been pulled out from beneath us. And I called Mr. Callaway," Walton testified Saturday. "I suggested to Bo — could he please find out what was the Forest Service position."

Skyjackers Head For Middle East

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — A Philippine jetliner carrying three Filipino Moslem hijackers and 10 hostages refueled at Karachi airport today after a flight from Bangkok and then headed west toward the Middle East and North Africa.

The hijackers were bound for Libya, but there was no assurance they would be welcome there.

Karachi airport authorities at first refused permission for the plane to land but later reversed their decision and allowed it to refuel.

The hijacking began last Wednesday morning in the southern Philippines, and is now in its sixth day, making it the longest on record. The previous record was four days.

The three young hijackers claim they are members of the Moro Liberation Front, a Moslem movement fighting for independence in the southern Philippines. They wanted to go to Libya, where the Front has an office. But a spokesman for the Front in Cairo disowned the hijacking, and the Philippine ambassador to Thailand, Manuel T. Yan, said the Libyan government had given no assurance that it would give the hijackers haven.

The three men, reported to be in their early 20's, took over a twin-engine PAL jet with 67 passengers and a crew of six aboard last Wednesday and forced the pilot to fly to Manila.

After a night on the runway in the Philippine capital, they released the 67 passengers in exchange for six more employees of the airlines and went to the Malaysian state of Sabah, in northern Borneo. Malaysian officials refused to give them asylum, and they flew to Kuala Lumpur, the Malaysian capital, where they spent Thursday night.

Revenue Sharing Now Political Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats who oppose renewal of federal revenue-sharing are being warned they may hand President Ford a political plum this election year if they delay extending the program.

At the height of the 1972 presidential campaign, Richard M. Nixon signed the federal revenue-sharing law with an entourage of the nation's mayors and governors looking on. The ceremony in front of Philadelphia's Independence Hall was hailed as a political triumph.

While there is little doubt that Congress will act this year to extend the program, delays by its Democratic opponents could create a time schedule that would deliver the bill to President Ford at the height of the election campaign in the autumn.

"If I were President Ford, I'd be delighted to get this bill in September," said John Gunther, executive director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. "Democratic mayors have been screaming to the Democratic leadership for one year: pass it and get it out of the way."

In an interview, Gunther also warned that if Congress does not approve the legislation before the summer recess, revenue-sharing opponents in the House may be able to pressure the Senate into accepting provisions that revenue-sharing advocates feel would weaken the program.

The legislation has strong bipartisan support in the Senate, and it is unlikely to become a political issue there.

But in the House, the bill must pass the House Government Operations Committee, whose chairman, Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., is opposed to it. Both Gunther and Paul Myer, who is monitoring the legislation for the White House, say the Senate bill will be more in line with what revenue-sharing proponents would like than the House bill.

Police Strike Threat Over

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The threat of a strike by Columbus police ended Sunday when members of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) voted overwhelmingly to accept a new contract.

The package, replacing a one-year agreement which expired Dec. 28, offers total wage increases of 18 per cent over the 30-month life of the contract, improved differentials between ranks and for working nights, additional vacation and more insurance.

The final vote tally late Sunday showed 517-189 in favor of acceptance by the city's 1,100-man department. FOP President Dewey Stokes said, "They are voting overwhelmingly in favor."

If approved by city council, the agreement would give police an immediate six per cent pay increase with another four per cent next December, three per cent in June 1977, and another five per cent in December 1977.

A 13 per cent differential between ranks will be increased to 14 per cent next June and officers working night shifts will get 10 cents more an hour immediately, 15 cents an hour more next June and 20 cents an hour more in December 1977.

Carter Promise - 'I'll Never Tell A Lie'

Editor's Note: The following is the first of three articles on the campaign tactics and styles of the top three Democratic presidential contenders. It focuses on Jimmy Carter.

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

About 150 people were milling outside the Masonic Temple in Peekskill, N.Y. when Jimmy Carter arrived just after dark. He waded through outstretched hands into a room filled with people, smoke and an out-of-tune band tooting that Democratic standby, "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Then he talked to a family audience about his family.

"My wife and I have been married 30 years, 30 years in July," he said. "We have three sons. My first son was born in Virginia 28 years ago. My second son was born 25 years ago in Hawaii; my third son was born 23 years ago in Connecticut. And then my wife and I had an argument for 14 years and I finally won and we have an 8-year-old daughter in Georgia."

The crowd laughed and applauded. Jimmy Carter had won another audience.

Farm & Fleet To Build Store In Bellefontaine

Quality Farm & Fleet, Inc., a Michigan based company, has announced its plans to locate in Bellefontaine. The firm is a mass merchandiser of farm, home, and automotive products.

The company currently operates four stores in Michigan, four stores in Indiana, and eleven stores in Ohio. The other eleven Ohio locations are: VanWert, Greenville, Marion, Wooster, Circleville, Fremont, Mansfield, Xenia, Newark, Dover, and Hamilton. A site in Lancaster, Ohio, has also been recently purchased.

Quality Farm & Fleet, Inc., carries a selection of over 15,000 items appealing to urban, suburban, and rural customers. Some of the departments to be included are: Agricultural Supplies, Hardware and Power Tools, Housewares, Clothing, and Automotive.

Over seven acres of the site will be used for the store, parking lot, and outside storage area with construction slated to begin this summer. The employment potential, while not firm, is expected to reach 25 people when the store is in full operation, a company official said.

The building plans call for a 32,000 square foot structure with Tire Service Center and is scheduled for completion late in 1976.

ching Carter's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination that much of his early success stems from the definitive political ability to size up an audience quickly and seize on its pet interests.

Carter's basic campaign promise is simple: "I'll never tell a lie." Try as they may, his opponents have been unable to catch him in one.

What Carter does instead is subtly change the emphasis in the same message from audience to audience, changing how he says it and what part of the message he chooses to emphasize.

One of his opponents, Rep. Morris K. Udall, told an audience recently: "In Boston, he got a good part of the anti-busing vote and a mile away in Roxbury he was getting a lot of the black vote. That's a good day's work if you can do it."

An example of the way he works came recently before two different audiences in White Plains and Peekskill, N.Y.

In White Plains, it was a suburban crowd, sprinkled with blacks. It was well-dressed, young, and middle class in an area where Democrats are basically liberal.

An hour later, in Peekskill, he spoke to workers, foremen, and small-business men and their families. Many were dressed in work clothes and several said they had voted in the past for George C. Wallace and were sympathetic to Ronald Reagan's challenge to President Ford.

In both places, Carter discussed welfare, and in both his basic position was the same: that welfare recipients who can work should be trained, taught to read, and offered jobs; that the federal and state governments should take the welfare burden off local agencies with a uniform nationwide payment to take care of their basic needs; that welfare workers should stop "shuffling paper" and "ought to spend their time dealing with the blind or the disabled or alleviating hunger or training people."

In White Plains, he finished his talk like this:

"But the other 90 per cent who can't work full time, we ought to treat them with respect, decency and concern and love ... There ought to be a work incentive aspect built in. So that if a mother, for instance, has two little children and she can leave those kids with a grandmother for 15 hours a week — her husband's dead — she ought to be encouraged to take a part-time job and not have her welfare payments suffer for it."

In Peekskill, it ended this way: "We've got to take the welfare responsibilities off of local government; off of the property taxpayer. I hope that in the future we never have another property tax dollar go for federal welfare costs. That ought to come out of the state and federal treasuries."

He did not use the White Plains line in Peekskill and vice versa.

Carter does not go into specifics about his welfare revision plans, which involve having states pick up some of the cost. Nor does he say how much it would cost and how much it might diminish local property taxes. He responds to questions about it by saying he believes much of it could be financed by shifting costs and through his government reorganization plan.

Like most candidates running for any office, Carter has a standard speech and variations of that standard speech. Which parts of it he uses depends on the audience, the location and their questions.

To Jewish voters, he talks about the Mideast and his "personal friendships" with Golda Meir, Yitzhak Rabin and other Israeli leaders. At the Rockland County Social Services

Agency headquarters in Pomona, N.Y., he talked about his health care program; in depressed Buffalo, he talked about his program for creating jobs; in Peekskill he got applause by mentioning he was the only one of 60 fellow naval officers to vote in 1948 for Harry S. Truman and played a variation on his "I'll never lie to you" theme by adding "And I believe Harry Truman never lied either."

There are parts of his standard speech that are used some places and not in others. In general, the less educated the audience, the folksier he gets.

In Peekskill, on the character of the American people — "a tremendous untapped reservoir of good sense, sound judgment, intelligence, ability, vision, a commitment to the work ethic, patriotism, religious faith."

To New York City blacks and again in Peekskill: "I was the first person in my daddy's family to go past high school."

In his early primary successes, Carter has gotten votes from interest groups normally in conflict: blacks and people opposed to busing; Chicago organization politicians and reform liberals who regularly oppose them; blue collar and white collar.

It's the same way as he campaigns. In New York City, a talk to a roomful of black leaders ("65 per cent of my neighbors in Plains are black and we get along fine") elicited a constant background murmuring of "right on!" and "tell it like it is." He got sustained applause in Peekskill, where there were Wallace and Reagan sympathizers in the audience.

At Union College in Schenectady, N.Y., where Carter did graduate work physics 25 years ago, the chapel was filled and there were about 300 people outside who couldn't get in. Local Carter workers said several local schools had been let out early so that the students could come, but nonetheless, the impression was that the former Georgia governor's reception was overwhelmingly favorable.

Again, he played to the crowd, emphasizing his complaints about what he called the "boss-dominated" New York primary system: "As an engineer and a scientist, I have not yet figured out the electoral process in New York State."

There is one Carter constant, usually as he is about to leave.

"I love my country," he says. "But it's just as much your country as it is mine and if you think something is wrong with it, do something about it. If you think I'm right, vote for me. If you think my opponent is right, vote for him. But our country should be a source of pride and inspiration instead of shame and apology and embarrassment."

It rarely fails to provide a buoyant exit.

Delta Queen Loses Race

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The venerable old Delta Queen found that she needs more than a face lift to compete with the much younger Natchez.

Last year, in what the riverboats' owners said was the first steamboat race in 100 years, the Natchez whipped the Queen handily.

That sent the Queen's owners to the drawing boards, where some lines were changed, some weights shifted, some additional horsepower squeezed from her engines.

In a rematch Sunday, the Natchez did it again.

The Natchez is a year-old excursion boat, while the Delta Queen is so old that special rules have been created to let her continue plying the Mississippi River—rules that make exceptions to the all-steel hull requirements enforced for other boats.

They splashed upstream side by side to the starting point at the upper limits of New Orleans, turned downstream and chugged about 10 miles to the finish line.

Although the Natchez won the race, the day was not a total loss for the Delta Queen. She won the prize for tooting most tunelessly in the callopie contest.

A Page Of Opinion

How Date Was Set

For reasons which are somewhat convoluted, voters finally will settle the presidential issue by going to the polls on the "first Tuesday after the first Monday" in November.

Congress back in 1792 set the first Wednesday in December as the day on which the electors of the various states would cast their votes for president. It allowed the electors to be chosen by their respective states at any time in the 34 days before that scheduled December meeting.

That resulted in a wide variation of election dates. Some states made their presidential choices late in October while some could wait until early in December. In close elections the political parties could sometimes send their followers into the last few states to vote a second time.

Also, in a landslide election a candidate might win before some states had even voted, making their balloting superfluous. This actually happened in 1840 when William Henry Harrison was elected before seven of the 26 states then in the union had held their elections.

So Congress in January, 1845, decided a uniform date would have to be set. Members agreed it would be in early November when all the crops were in but before the heavy snows of winter.

So the date finally was set for "the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November." That's why election day this year falls on Nov. 2.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I am past 45. I have always known that I have many psychological hangups. I have resisted going to doctors about them. Now I'm at my wit's end. Can anyone of my age still be helped?

Mr. R. F., Tex.

Dear Mr. F.: Are you sure that you are not using your young age of 45 as another excuse for not seeking the psychological help that you know you need?

I know that there is no age group that cannot benefit from some form of psychological guidance, psychotherapy or psycho-direction. There may be some schools of psychoanalytical thought that believe that intensive psychoanalysis should be reserved only for young people. However, they all agree that "talking out" problems can contribute enormously to people in every age group.

You obviously have broken through the rigidity of your thinking and now realize that you deserve better emotional help than you have had.

There is now available for you, individual analysis, group therapy, and transactional therapy, all of which can contribute enormously to your emotional stability.

There is no shame in seeking the guidance you need to bring you greater fulfillment and relief from the emotional problems that have plagued you for such a long time.

Forceps were used to deliver my child. There are no after effects. Nevertheless I still worry after two months that something will show up later. I am a worry wart anyway.

Mrs. B. P. G., Del.

Dear Mrs. G.: As you may know, forceps are specially constructed, strong, yet delicate, instruments which are placed around the head of a baby to make delivery easier and faster.

When the mother seems to be getting tired and the delivery is unusually long, this method is safely and painlessly used.

You should by now have been assured that neither you nor the baby were adversely affected by this rather frequent procedure.

To be sure that you do not persist in having these frightening thoughts I suggest that you discuss this matter with the doctor who delivered your baby.

Dear Editor:

Six young girls from Circleville High School have some public thanks to give. As basketball statisticians we have once again had a wonderful year and we owe this to many people.

First, we cannot say enough about what it has been like to watch, follow, cheer and for us to keep "stats" for our super team. They really made our job one of joy. So to the team, we say "thanks for a job well done!"

Next, Mr. Bailey was a kind taskmaster and was also very considerate of us. It was fun working for him. Thanks for everything, Coach, and especially for the lovely corsages you gave to us at the basketball awards banquet.

Special thanks go to our parents for their help in driving or providing a car for us.

Special thanks also go to Ed Dumm and Wendell Perkins. These fellows always had some special treats for us at every game. They really took care of our "sweet tooth."

Thanks to the Athletic Booster Club for providing us with tickets to all the tournament games.

We also owe a special thanks to the interested community donor who gave silver basketball charms to the Senior "Stats". Coach Bailey said this community donor will be doing this yearly and we appreciate knowing that our work has not gone unrecognized.

Finally and certainly high on our list of thanks come the Fraternal Order of Police and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Pontious. The last two years our team has gone to the Dayton Regionals, the F.O.P. has picked up the tab for the statisticians and we have certainly appreciated their sponsorship and generosity. We six girls were treated to transportation, rooms and meals by the Fraternal Order of Police. Mr. and Mrs. Pontious were our chaperones and we appreciated their good care.

These special victories and great basketball team will be among our special memories of high school days. We hope the upcoming classes and teams can have such good years. Being statisticians for the Circleville Tigers has been gr-gr-great!!!

Say Jobless Rate Could Be Slashed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The current unemployment rate of more than 7 per cent could be reduced to around 4 per cent, according to Rep. James V. Stanton, D-Ohio, a candidate for the Democratic Senate nomination in the state's June 8 primary.

At a news conference outside a Columbus shoe factory Saturday, Stanton argued for more public service jobs and more support to struggling businesses.

The Cuyahoga County congressman urged granting revenue sharing bonuses to cities with unemployment rates of 6 per cent or more, saying the money could be used to prevent layoffs.

Mardi Gras was first celebrated in New Orleans in 1827 when French-American students organized a procession of mummers on Shrove Tuesday, the last day of the season of merrymaking before Lent.

Cool Vengeance

By JIM BISHOP

This spring the U.S. Supreme Court will tell five Southern states whether they may reinstate capital punishment as fitting punishment for murder. It is not a simple issue. Be assured that the High Court will be criticized no matter which way its judgment falls.

Capital punishment was struck down by the Court in 1972. Opponents of legal death hoped that the nine Justices would denounce it as "cruel and unusual punishment." The black-robed men sidestepped that phrase by claiming that death sentences were unevenly applied in the several states.

As an example, coercive rape might be punished in New York State with a one — or two-year sentence; in Florida the same crime could mean death in the electric chair.

Since 1972, the attorneys general of Texas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and North Carolina — each of whom want a death penalty on the books — have reached common agreement on an "even" law. Other states are watching the battle unfold before the Supreme Court, and if the new statutes are upheld, it will be copied in the East and Midwest.

I have been opposed to capital punishment on two grounds: I was assigned to watch many executions; statistics tend to show that the threat of death does not inhibit potential murderers.

Two thousand years ago, man had no jails. The punishment for all crimes was death. In Rome, a citizen driving a chariot from the Alban Hills to the Senate would see, along the roadside, about 600 men dying on crosses.

In Palestine, all serious violations of God's law were punishable by stoning to death. In the Orient, heads were chopped off. At one time, Great Britain punished pickpockets with public hanging. More pockets were picked during the execution than on other occasions.

And yet, I waver in my belief. Crime in our streets is out of control. Our prisons are jammed. Criminals out on bail for one violent crime commit another. Some filling stations and bars sustain three and four holdups each year.

The big fight against capital punishment is not coming from liberals this time. Lawyers for the NAACP are in the forefront. They claim that a disproportionate number of blacks are sentenced to die.

Disproportionate to what? Blacks represent 11 per cent of our population. FBI statistics show that blacks are arrested for 41 per cent of all cases of aggravated assault, 57 per cent of all murders, and 62 per cent of robberies.

It is not racist to point to the inarguable fact that 11 per cent of the population perpetrates more than half the murders. Nor is it out of order to note that a great deal of black crime is directed against black people.

The U.S. Solicitor General, Robert H. Bork, has filed a brief in support of the Southern contention that the electric chair and hanging should be a part of our culture. New statistics, he says, prove that the death penalty is a deterrent to murder. The old ones never proved it.

If death stops crime, why limit it to murder? There are plenty of precedents in common law depicting hanging as fit punishment for all crimes of violence.

Armed robbery, assault with a deadly weapon, breaking and entering with threats to the lives of occupants — why not? If we must kill legally to stop illegal killing, let us protect our citizens from knives, guns, lead pipes, baseball bats and other barbarous attacks.

Kill them with cool vengeance. Let us deter all criminals from scaring us to death. Hold all executions in the big dining halls of our state prisons. Attendance by convicts must be mandatory.

Let them see what lies ahead on their road. Why go part of the way? If my opposition to capital punishment must melt against the heat of the majority of citizens — so be it. But go all the way.

Why not mandatory life terms for three-time recidivists? I can forgive one crime. Maybe two. Nothing can persuade me that a convict who has been found guilty three times will reform.

Put him away permanently. Abolish the parole commissions, which are in business to undo the work of juries and judges. Put the criminal to work behind bars so that he is not a burden to the taxpayers.

Reluctantly, I concede that I was wrong. Toughen the laws and allow them to apply equally to all malefactors. These days, it's them or us. . .

Nevada Volunteers Fight To Curb Rape

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The move to change public attitudes and laws on rape, launched in the nation's urban centers, has extended to Nevada where rapes occur at a rate far above the national average.

The fight to curb rape in this tourism-oriented state has been led mainly by underfunded and widely scattered volunteer groups.

But leaders of the movement say the combination of innovative rape counseling techniques by volunteer groups and sweeping changes in state law dealing with rape are producing positive results.

FBI statistics show an eight per cent increase in reported rapes or rape attempts in Las Vegas, Nevada's largest city, in 1975. That compares to an average national increase of just one per cent.

That looks bad, but the figures indicate victims who were unwilling to report rapes before are now beginning to realize they'll get help instead of hassles, the movement leaders say.

Florence McClure, a 54-year-old grandmother who runs "Community Action Against Rape" in Las Vegas, says "there has always been a lot of rapes, but they went unreported. Victims didn't think they would get a fair shake from anyone. But the word is getting out. Things aren't as bad as they used to be."

Mrs. McClure works mainly in Las Vegas, a gambling mecca which draws millions of tourists yearly. The area has been ranked third nationally in incidence of rape on a per capita basis.

Other rape crisis centers in Nevada are in areas which also draw crowds of tourists: Reno and the Lake Tahoe Basin.

"We attract our share of weirdos along with the tourists who come here to gamble," says Mrs. McClure. "We have a unique problem."

That problem has produced programs which are apparently among the most advanced in the nation.

The Nevada rape centers, all run on shoestring budgets by volunteers, provide immediate counseling for rape victims, along with help in dealing with police, hospitals, court appearances and families. In some cases self defense programs are offered.

Mrs. McClure's program also offers follow-up counseling. Male counselors are available to talk with fathers, husbands, boyfriends or brothers of women victims.

Efforts are also made to get psychiatric care when needed, or relocate victims and find them new jobs. Government resources are tapped when available.

"We follow up on our clients on an individual basis, according to their needs," says Mrs. McClure. "We can find out if they quit a job. Then we know something's wrong, and we contact them."

The 1975 legislature, responding to public concern mainly from Las Vegas, passed laws to limit courtroom testimony on a rape victim's past sexual history. Legislators redefined rape and allowed women to file rape charges against separated spouses. The lawmakers also authorized counties to pay up to $1,000 for counseling and medical treatment for rape victims.

The changes in state law are similar to legislative changes in more than a dozen other states. Much of the legislation has been modeled after laws passed in 1974 in Michigan.

The production of "Ladybugs And Buckeyes" is an historical presentation of fashions from the time of Ohio's Statehood in 1803 to the present. It included a narrated review with slides and models wearing reproductions as well as original clothing and accessories.

Many memories were brought back as the ladies viewed the display of antique shoes and children's toys.

The luncheon committee included Mrs. Fritz Jacobs, chairman; Mrs. Roger May, Mrs. Robert McKelvey, Mrs. C.J. Vaughan, Mrs. Roderick Allen and Mrs. Richard Gerhardt, program chairman.

Mrs. Val Minor Sorority Speaker

Mrs. Val Minor RN, representing Pickaway County Chapter of American Cancer Society, spoke before members of Xi Eta Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Tuesday evening.

She began the program for the meeting held in the home of Mrs. Donna Root, 123 Gale Court, with showing the film "The First Lady." It was of Mrs. Ford speaking on her experience with cancer. The message was that "we are here to help each other." Mrs. Minor also presented the breast self-examination kit which is available for any organization's use. LUNCHBOX SPECIAL

Meat and slaw sandwiches, new prune bars, beverage.

New Prune Bars

1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 large eggs
1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar

1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup packaged pitted prunes, thinly sliced (see Note)
1 cup walnuts, chopped medium fine Confectioners' sugar

Stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat eggs slightly; gradually beat in brown sugar and vanilla until extremely thick and a pale beige color. Gradually fold in flour, then prunes mixed with nuts. Turn into an 8 by 8 by 2-inch cake pan lined with wax paper and the paper greased. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean . . . 30 minutes. Turn out on wire rack; remove paper; with another rack turn right side up; cool. Slice into bars. Roll in confectioners' sugar.

Note: If you freeze packaged pitted prunes overnight (they never get rock-hard or stick to one another) in a tightly closed plastic bag, they are easy to slice thin with a sharp knife or in one of the new French food processors — the latter slicing will be noisy but takes only seconds — C.B.

2 tablespoons light cream or milk
1-3rd cup golden or dark raisins, chopped

Early Settlers Saw America As Promised Land

Editor's Note: This is the first part of a five-part Easter series on the biennial theme of the nation's birth, "The Founding Faith." This installment deals with the American sense of destiny as a "promised" land.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

In the image of the ancient Israelites who broke free from bondage in Egypt, the early settlers in America saw their venture as a divine liberation from the yoke of the "old world" to shape their own lives in a land given them.

It was God's "new Israel." They had fled the oppressive "pharaohs" of Europe, crossed the "Red Sea" of the Atlantic, braved its furies and entered an unknown "wilderness" to build a new "Zion" on earth.

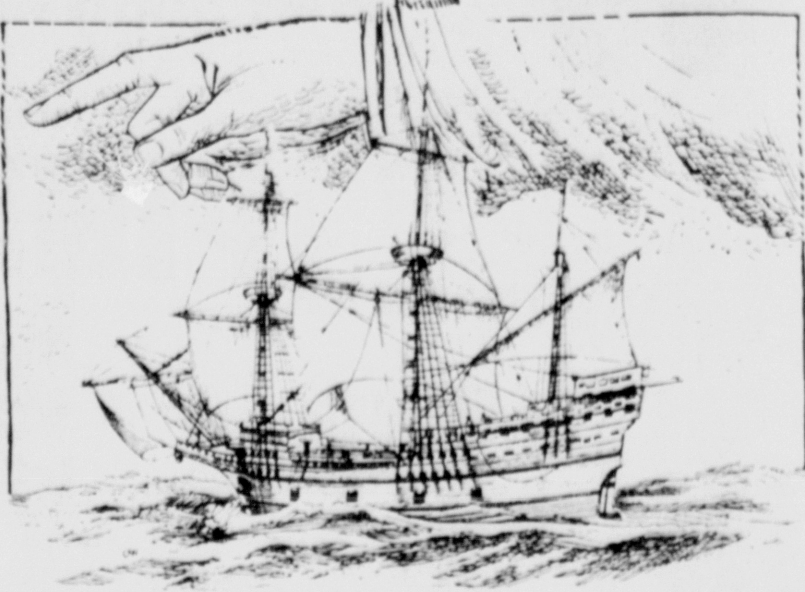

"We shall find that the God of Israel is among us," wrote the governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, John Winthrop, at its beginnings in 1630. "For we must consider that we shall be as a 'City upon a Hill' . . . The eyes of all people are upon us."

That sense of divinely appointed destiny, of being chosen for a special mission in the world to bring "light to the nations," as Scripture phrased it, pervaded the life of the colonial communities, fired the American Revolution, and has tinged the country's outlook ever since.

"Righteous Empire," historian Martin Marty described it in a book of that name. It has nurtured America's greatness and also, occasionally, its arrogance and imperial might. There is a double edge to it, as Moses told the Israelites, both "blessing and curse."

Those contrasting possibilities often were cited by the early Americans. "Thus stands the cause between God and us," Winthrop wrote, recalling the Biblical lawgiver's alternatives, of goodness or evil, life or death.

"Therefore let us choose life, that we and our seed may live, by obeying his voice and cleaving to him," Winthrop wrote. If this is done, "the Lord will be our God and delight to dwell among us as his own people and will command a blessing upon us . . . He shall make us a praise and glory."

That high calling resounded through the documents and speeches of the period, becoming etched in the consciousness of a people.

Sometimes, their past European persecutions and new hardships were compared to Christ's crucifixion, ensuing in victorious life, a promise of renewal reflected in a "new world." That term itself conveys the revivifying note of Easter.

But most consistently, the colonists saw their experience as a re-enactment of the ancient deliverance of the children of Israel from thralldom, a pilgrimage into the wilds toward the goal of a "promised land."

The Lord will make "his American Israel high above all nations which he has made," said Ezra Stiles, an early president of Yale University. Both ministers and magistrates applied the analogy to the emerging nation.

While the ideal was universal, "its roots were Hebraic," says historian Winthrop S. Hudson. "Its explication was cast in Hebraic metaphors — chosen people, covenanted nation, Egyptian bondage, promised land."

When Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin and John Adams in 1776 were assigned to design an official seal for the new nation, both Franklin and Jefferson considered the image of the exodus from Egypt as the best representation of the American struggle for a new land of freedom.

Franklin proposed a portrayal of Moses lifting his hand over the Red Sea as its waters engulfed Pharaoh's troops and chariots, with this motto: "Rebellion to tyrants is obedience to God."

Jefferson suggested a representation of the children of Israel in the wilderness, led by a cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night, as in the Biblical account. The U.S. seal, adopted in 1782 and appeared on every dollar bill, shows the "eye of God" above an Egyptian pyramid with these words: "Annuit Coeptis," meaning, "He has favored our undertakings."

George Washington, as commander-in-chief of the Continental Army, was likened to Moses, Gideon, Joshua, leaders of the Israelites struggling for a new land. Jefferson, concluding his second presidential inaugural, referred to the Biblical image of America, saying:

"I shall need . . . the favor of that Being who led our fathers, as Israel of old, from their native land and planted them in a country flowing with all the necessities and comforts of life."

In origin, America's sense of God's favor always was tempered by the Biblical awareness that misused potentialities would bring divine judgment. There was a consequent insistence on moral discipline, an element sometimes wanting in later national leadership, including some of its recent phases.

But the religious-moral demands conditioned early American assumptions, not only providing a prime motive that drove the first European settlers to flee regimentation of faith in the old countries, but that also set the inceptive pattern of society in the new.

Historian Louis B. Wright observes that it is difficult for 20th-century minds, in considering the colonial period, to comprehend "the pervasiveness of religion and its universal influences upon men, women and children in the earlier age."

Whether it was the Puritan "holy commonwealth" in New England, the Anglican establishments in the south, Quaker William Penn's "holy experiment" in Pennsylvania, Catholic Lord Baltimore's "religious toleration" in Maryland, or Baptist Roger Williams' "soul liberty" in Rhode Island, religious considerations shaped the frameworks.

Protestants overwhelmingly predominated in the new country. By the time of the 1776 War of Independence, in a population of 3.5 million, there were only about 22,000 Catholics and 6,000 Jews, subject to various exclusions from civic privileges.

With rare exceptions, the religious scaffolding of state prevailed throughout the newly planted communities. The combination of church and government continued largely for almost two centuries, preserving a pattern set at the start.

The first 105 English settlers in 1607 at Jamestown, Va., had official instructions "to serve and fear God, the Giver of all goodness, for every plantation which our Heavenly Father has not planted shall be rooted out." On their first Sunday, they shared Holy Communion, led by Anglican minister Robert Hunt, charged with supervising the colony's religious life.

When the 41 Pilgrims made it ashore at Plymouth, Mass., in 1620, they "fell upon their knees and blessed God of Heaven," relates their first governor, William Bradford.

"In the name of God, Amen," begins their famed Mayflower Compact, which bound them together in their undertaking "for the glory of God, and the advancement of the Christian faith, and honor of our king and country."

These devout beginnings, there and elsewhere, set the spiritual tone of life in the colonies, along with the dangers, the sickness, the clearing of land with flintlocks at hand, rugged shelters and hard labor. Religious considerations figured in most everything, making a livelihood, courtship, rearing a family, dress, dying, forming governments, determining and enforcing laws.

The Bible was regarded as a handbook for directing individual, family, social, economic and government affairs. Even Quaker William Penn, in forming his colony in 1682 open to diverse Christian beliefs as "an example to the nations," said:

"Government seems to me a part of religion itself, a thing sacred in its institution and end."

But the most powerful religious force in America's origins stemmed from the Puritans — those hardy, tough-minded, dedicated Christians whose name originated in British ridicule for their determination to "purify" the Church of England of musty formalism. They had crossed the sea to uphold a stouter, personalized faith.

Actually, they were Congregationalists (now combined into the United Church of Christ), but the term, Puritan, came to be applied to their colonial period. They dominated New England and were numerous in other colonies, exerting a tempering influence on American Anglicans (Episcopalians), then bound to the Church of England.

Historians estimate that at the time of the American Revolution, fully 75 per cent of the people in the country drew their spiritual backbone from Puritanism. It was the "X" of the formative equation of American culture.

"Not to understand Puritanism is not to understand America," says historian Joseph Gaer. The Puritans, although highly disciplined, were not the dour, stuffy grouches they often are caricatured as being. They were stubborn of principle, straight-spoken, thrifty, industrious, earnest and devout, but not squeamish, austere ascetics.

They appreciated good food, drank wine and ale, married early and often within weeks of being widowed, esteemed good literature, the works of Plato, Shakespeare and Christopher Marlowe, whose classic diction also stamps Puritan sermons and writings. They wore black on Sundays, but brighter colors, often russet browns, during the week.

Their leaders were highly educated and they encouraged the intellectual tradition.

One of the chief concerns of the earliest Puritan settlers, after arranging for shelter, livelihood, a place of worship and government, was to "advance learning and perpetuate it to posterity," according to a document describing the founding of Harvard University, in 1636.

Many other leading universities had religious origins in colonial times, including Princeton started by the Presbyterians, Brown started by Baptists, Rutgers started by Dutch Reformed leaders, Yale started by Puritans. They wanted no "dumme dogs," as one document puts it, as leaders.

But whether education, religion or government, the center of Puritan direction was the "meeting house," which was not only the geographical and social focus of the town, but the nucleus of spiritual and political guidance.

It usually was a plain building, intentionally in contrast to the ornate churches of Europe. The "meeting house" had a pulpit and serviceable table, but no holy altar, and served both for worship and town assemblies, with civil and ecclesiastical business conducted there. The people were summoned by a drum or blowing on a conch shell, later by a bell when steeples were added.

They conceived of religion as an inclusive affair, embracing all aspects of existence, artistic, literary and political, and not in a narrow fundamentalist sense.

Opposing the solemn ritualism of England, the Puritans stressed the Bible as the sole standard, resorting to it for guidance on the smallest detail. Their principles demanded strenuous self-examination of conscience, with a tough-minded realism about human faults which tended to make them shrewd bargainers in trade.

From the first, the Puritans adhered to a "covenant" type of government, traced back to the ancient Biblical covenant between God, Abraham and his descendants. In each community, sometimes in a field, the new Americans would gather and pledge themselves to God and one another for community order and protection.

"The Hebraic mortar cemented the foundations of American democracy," wrote the 19th-century historian William Edward Lecky.

But Puritanism was also strictly authoritarian and hierarchical, with command placed only in the hands of the academically qualified. It was also rigorously demanding and could be harsh in its penalties for lapses of dissent. But it set a cultural mold for a budding nation.

"The Lord hath more light yet to break forth out of his Holy Word," said pastor John Robinson of that first New England colony at Plymouth, and that expanding light would kindle the fire of American independence.

Rhodes OKs 30-Day Tags

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes signed into law Friday a measure expanding the allowable time period for temporary automobile license tags from 20 to 30 days.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. John Wargo, D-2 Lisbon, is intended to provide more leeway for Ohioans who purchase cars out of state and experience difficulty getting a title within 20 days. The time period for obtaining title is also increased from 20 to 30 days.

The new law raises from 10 to 30 days the period for changing license plates under a transfer of registration.

Rhodes also approved a bill authorizing Secretary of State Ted W. Brown to designate officials to sign documents for Brown or use his facsimile signature.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Paul Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, was requested by Brown as an aid to meet the flood of paperwork he encounters as the state's election officer.

Both laws take effect July 9, 1976.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Fingered" by the manager of a supermarket, Roger was arrested and brought to trial on a charge of armed robbery. But the jury found him not guilty. Roger promptly filed a suit against the market manager for malicious prosecution.

"He put me through a terrible ordeal," Roger told the court. "He ought to reimburse me for making that false accusation."

But the court could find nothing worse than an innocent mistake on the part of the manager. Dismissing Roger's claim, the court said there could be no "malicious" prosecution when there was no malice.

The law generally takes this forgiving attitude toward people who instigate criminal charges that fail to stand up in court. Reason: the law does not want to discourage most honest citizens from reporting crimes.

"No one would willingly (report) a breach of law," observed one judge, "with the prospect of a suit for malicious prosecution staring him in the face."

Nevertheless, the law does indeed frown on accusations made recklessly or wickedly. A bank executive described a wanted man as being grey-haired and about 5'8" tall. Yet later, at police headquarters, he picked out a suspect who was 6' tall and had brown hair.

This was enough basis, a court said afterward, for a jury to infer malice and to hold the banker legally liable.

In another case a farmer, angered by thefts from his apple orchard, had a neighbor's son arrested for stealing. Unable to come up with any evidence at all, he finally admitted that he was just trying to "throw a scare" into the neighborhood.

Here too the court ordered the farmer to pay damages. He had no right, said the court, to subvert the machinery of justice for his own ends.

LE Teachers Promote Fun And Games In Education

STILTS and strings from cans and things make an interesting and fun activity for Jeanie Stuckey and Brett Tatman, while June Eveland, 3rd grade teacher from Saltcreek nods her approval of this game of balance and coordination.

WE all pitch in and clown it up with the "Bean Bag Toss." Cathy Hamman, Saltcreek 4th grade teacher waits her turn as Shelley Barnhart and Jeff Johnston take aim. Tauna Reichelderfer and Cindy Pennington give their support to Mr. Clown.

MAINTAINING good balance and posture and learning the ups and downs of the walking board are the first graders, Tim Thurston, Charles Murphy, Jimmy Hoffman, Rachel Davis, Venessa McNeal and Joe Neff who are prompted by Carol Reichelderfer, first grade teacher from Saltcreek.

MARGARET Chilcote, 4th grade teacher from Saltcreek smiles as students challenge each other at "balloon badminton." Holding easily constructed nylon racquets are Ronnie Imler and Darcy Tomlinson on left and Robert Weaver, Debbie Chandler and Amy Smith on right.

RECYCLING can create a fun time experience. Bleach bottles are constructed into scoops which are used for throwing and catching. Steve Woodgeard and Betty Boyer using their gaily decorated scoops as Janice Rice, second grade teacher from Saltcreek shows the proper wrist movement needed for a proper toss. Scoop games teach hand, wrist and eye coordination in "Pin Hit" or "Zig-Zag" Relay.

EXERCISE and games are fun, but who can resist such a sumptuous buffet table. Marcia Robertson, chairman of the refreshment committee, and the Saltcreek faculty greet their fellow teachers with smiles and nutritious foods.

Inservice teacher training sessions in the Logan Elm School District were concluded for this school year by the faculty of the Saltcreek School. The staff selected "Eat Right, Play Right, and Feel Right" as the theme for the inservice meeting. A buffet of "health" foods was served during the social hour preceeding the presentations.

Since educators agree that muscular development and coordination are important in all phases of learning, the subject of the meeting was Physical Education. As teachers are responsible for incorporating physical education in the regular school curriculum, both room and large area activities were compiled into a booklet which was presented to each attending teacher. Realizing that the rules of the major sports are well-known, the booklet contained original and innovative ideas and games.

Charles Pritchard, principal of Saltcreek school began the session with "Hand-Jive Movements" in which all teachers participated. At the conclusion of this session the intermediate teachers continued with gym activities, while the primary teachers went to an adjoining classroom and became involved in classroom games. At the end of this period, primary teachers returned to the gym for large group activity while the intermediate teachers moved to the classroom for demonstrations.

The Saltcreek staff members used available materials and constructed their own inexpensive equipment. This equipment was demonstrated by students of the Saltcreek school under the direction of the classroom teachers. Each school in the district was presented a gift of the materials constructed by the Saltcreek teachers which included a yarn ball, ring toss game, racquet set, scoop and bean bags. The principal of each school received a tape of the "Hand-Jive Movements" to be shared by the teachers of the individual schools.

Plans are currently being considered by the curriculum council concerning what type of inservice to provide for the coming school year in the Logan Elm School District.

STEPPING over the wands are Bryan Radabaugh, Dwight Disbennett, Tammy Thompson, and Tracy Unger in the back row, while front row steppers are Pam Hartley, Kenny McNeal, and Terry Gierhart. This fun activity which teaches agility and balance includes Jill Simon, second grade teacher at Saltcreek as well as the eager youngsters.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

More On Spouse's 'Surprise' Visit

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to that wife who "prettied herself up" and laid down on the sofa with nothing on because her husband called and said he was bringing her a surprise was silly!

Why shouldn't a man be furious with his wife for pulling such a stupid stunt? Husbands often bring home unexpected company. To find his wife stretched out on the sofa without a stitch on when he opens the door accompanied by two business associates would embarrass any man with an ounce of brains.

In recent years it seems that more people are obsessed with the idea of parading around naked. I guess maybe they don't realize that most folks look better with something on.

Sure, I think the husband should forgive her, but maybe he has taught her a good lesson for being so vain and self-centered.

I'll bet if the situation had been reversed, and the wife came home with two of her lady friends to find her husband stretched out on the sofa naked as a jaybird, that wife would have been furious.

PUZZLED AT YOUR ANSWER

DEAR PUZZLED: You could be right, but my mail has been running 50 to one in favor of the wife. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A wife wrote that her husband had called, saying he was bringing home a "surprise" for her and asking her to fix a pitcher of martinis. She thought it was the diamond earrings she had wanted for Christmas, so she prettied herself up and stretched out (sans clothes) on the sofa as a "surprise" for him.

Abby, that husband must be crazy! How lucky can a man be to come home with two business associates to a pitcher of cold martinis and a wife stretched out naked on the sofa! He must be the envy of the entire company. I can't understand why he should be upset with her. SHE should be upset with him for putting her in that embarrassing situation. That husband should hotfoot it to his local jeweler for those diamond earrings.

She gets my vote for being an ideal wife, and if you won't tell MY wife, I'll make her those earrings myself!

PENNSYLVANIA JEWELER

DEAR ABBY: I'm with you! That husband who came home to the wife who wanted to surprise him because he said he was bringing HER a surprise had no right to be furious with her.

He owes her not only the earrings, but also a matching necklace, finger rings and a Mediterranean cruise!

PPG Industries Contributes $7.3 Million To Area Economy

PPG Industries' Circleville resins production facility contributed more than $7.3 million to the South-Central Ohio economy during 1975, Plant Manager James M. Butler announced.

The plant, three miles south of Circleville, produces synthetic resins for use in PPG automotive primers and finishes, industrial coatings and consumer paints. The plant also produces plastic resins and intermediates for use in reinforced plastic products, molded plastic parts and foam insulation.

The 160 employees of the PPG Coatings & Resins Division facility earned more than $2.1 million in wages and salaries last year, according to Butler. An additional payroll of $143,000 went to local contractors for construction work inside the plant.

Purchases from 240 area suppliers topped $3.3 million, while district transportation and utility expenditures exceeded $1.3 million.

In addition, the PPG facility spent $80,000 for environmental control operations.

The Circleville plant, the company's major resins-producing operation, began production in 1962. In the paint industry since 1900, PPG's Coatings & Resins Division has 12 domestic production facilities.

PPG also is a leading producer of glass, chemicals and fiber glass. It has 79 manufacturing locations worldwide, 45 of them in the United States.

In 1975, PPG had net earnings of $89 million on sales of $1.89 billion. The net earnings represent a return of 4.7 per cent on sales. Wages, salaries and employee benefits amounted to $560 million, or 29 per cent of sales. Materials and services totaled $1.1 billion, or 58 per cent of sales. The company paid income taxes of $56.8 million.

PPG Industries contributed more than $86.6 million to the Ohio economy during 1975 through its production and technical operations in the state.

PPG also produces industrial and agricultural chemicals at Barberton, automotive and specialty tempered glass at Crestline, automotive and industrial coatings at Cleveland, various industrial and automotive coatings at Delaware and sheet and tempered glass at Mount Vernon.

The Industrial Chemical Division's principal technical center also is located at Barberton.

The more than 2,100 employees of PPG's Ohio facilities earned more than $46.4 million in wages and salaries last year, PPG said.

Purchases from nearly 2,600 suppliers in the plant areas totaled $23 million, while utility and transportation costs for the facilities amounted to more than $14.2 million, according to PPG.

Buy your own telephone equipment and suddenly you're running two businesses.

When you buy your own private telephone equipment, you become, in effect, your own private telephone company. With responsibilities, problems and expenses of a telephone company.

That's why we, the Telephone Company, think you're better off with us.

Maintenance and repair, for example, can be a big problem with a customer-owned system. And an even bigger expense. But with our equipment service is always part of the deal. And our men are always nearby to do the job quickly and efficiently.

Private equipment is also a capital expenditure. Even taking depreciation allowances into account, that money might do more good elsewhere in your business.

There's insurance to worry about, too. Operator training. Property taxes. The expense of connecting your equipment to phone company lines. As for the hardware itself, no matter whose line of equipment you choose, it won't be any more modern or complete than ours.

Call your local General Telephone business office and talk to one of our Communications Consultants who will extol our virtues in more detail and give you a complete computer cost analysis —us vs. anybody.

That should convince you that giving us your business is good for your business.

Harsha Reports

BY WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
Sixth District Of Ohio

A Presidential election year provides the setting in which candidates often make grandiose statements on issues they secretly hope they will never have to face in the White House. Sometimes, they simply avoid them entirely.

Two issues that will have to be faced by our 1976 crop of Presidential aspirants are the revival of Cuban military adventurism and the future of the Panama Canal.

In light of both Cuba's intervention in Angola and Panama's threats to take by force what she fails to get at the conference table, the American voters have every right to know how candidates for the Presidency would handle these problems if given the opportunity.

Cuba's decision to send 12,000 combat troops to fight in the Angolan civil war certainly weakened the case of those in this country who have advocated that the United States renew diplomatic and trade relations with the Castro Government.

And for the moment, at least, a number of Latin American nations are having second thoughts about welcoming Communist Cuba back into the hemispheric community.

After all, Castro was supposed to have given up the idea of exporting guerilla warfare and subversion to other nations. However, his Angolan caper invites considerable speculation as to his future intentions and indeed, those of his Russian benefactors.

It could be that Cuba used Angola to combat-train a military force for possible use in another area, possibly in this hemisphere.

The Soviet interest in "Communistizing" Angola, with Cuban help, could well be the control of shipping lanes along the west coast of Africa between the Indian and South Atlantic oceans and between Southern Africa and the Western Hemisphere.

Communist control of the Panama Canal would be another giant step toward control of the seas by the Soviets, who continue to expand and strengthen their already considerable naval forces.

The Cuban connection with the Panama Canal controversy has been established. Panamanian Chief of State Omar Torrijos is following the Castro line in declaring our interests no longer valid in his country, and Castro himself has promised Cuban support for Panama in any Canal fight.

General Torrijos and his associates have had many consultations with Castro, and it is reasonable to assume that the Cuban dictator has offered more than mere words of support.

All of which adds new importance to the ongoing negotiations between the United States and Panama over a possible new Canal treaty.

Not that there is the least justification for our surrendering the Canal to any nation, but the notion that the present government in Panama is either capable of or disposed toward the neutral operation of the only passageway between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans is wishful thinking.

Torrijos is a tough-talking military dictator. He is also the 59th Panamanian head of state in the past 70 years. That hardly speaks well for the stability of the nation which seeks to control this vital waterway.

Our claim to the Canal and the Canal Zone is clear, and by now, most Americans must know that we have unlimited and perpetual rights to the Canal and its zone. In fact, six different treaties negotiated before, during and after the Canal's construction substantiate our position.

At this point, no final treaties have been drawn and none are waiting to be ratified by Congress, even though the Panamanian foreign minister has been talking as if transfer of the Canal to Panama were imminent.

Thus, if and when we refuse to give up the Canal, we will be pictured before the world as a bully who reneged on his word. However, it is more important that we not be viewed as a nation which succumbs to every threat, or as a "paper tiger" masquerading as the world's foremost power.

We face a growing threat to our sovereignty and our national security — and at our very doorsteps. In this Bicentennial election year, our leaders and would-be leaders have the opportunity and the duty to recognize that threat as real and resolve to yield neither American honor nor American property.

Moro Nixes Italian Red Demands

ROME (AP) — The Italian lira plunged from 879 to the dollar to a new low of 895 today as the fragile minority government prepared for early elections because it refused to give the Communists a role in making policy.

The government was also hit by another oil kickback scandal.

Leaders of the ruling Christian Democratic party rejected Communist party leader Enrico Berlinguer's demand for a voice in decisions by Premier Aldo Moro's government.

Berlinguer told 30,000 cheering supporters at a rally in Rome Saturday that only such an "entente" could avert an election this summer, a vote in which observers predict the Communists will top the Christian Democrats for the first time. But the Christian Democrats, under pressure from the Vatican and the U.S. government, rebuffed the Communist bid just as they had earlier Communist demands to be admitted to the government.

Parliamentarians were preparing a bill to be introduced into the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday to cut the campaign period from 70 days to 40 or 45. Moro was expected to ask President Giovanni Leone to dissolve parliament at the end of April or a week later, with the election to follow on June 13 or 20.

Moro's two-month-old government has been kept alive only by the benign abstention of the Socialists on confidence votes and is incapable of imposing the austerity measures the right wing of the Christian Democrats consider necessary to deal with the country's staggering economic problems.

The inflation rate is 20 per cent. Eight per cent of the work force is unemployed. The lira has slipped from 670 to the dollar to nearly 900 in three months, and the foreign debt now totals $15 billion.

Speech Therapy Prof Was Stutterer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dr. Joseph Agnello recalls how he cringed in a movie theater seat when the cartoon would end with Porky Pig stuttering: "Th-Th-Th-That's All F-F-Folks."

Hiker Use Of Trail Skyrockets

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — The Appalachian Trail is facing a staggering increase in hiker use and development pressure, according to the executive director of the National Appalachian Trail Conference.

Paul Pritchard, in a speech here to the Maine Appalachian Trail Conference this weekend, said that trail use has grown from an estimated 500,000 hikers in 1968 to 4 million last year.

Pritchard said that private land on which 60 per cent of the 2,000-mile footpath is located used to be largely family farms, but is now being bought up for subdivisions and commercial development.

Pritchard blamed the federal government for neglecting the recreational value of the trail, which stretches from Baxter State Park in Maine to Springer Mountain in Georgia. He said Congress in 1968 had promised $5 million a year for land purchase along the trail, but that none of the money had been made available until recently.

Within the past few months the U.S. Department of the Interior has made $1 million available and the federal Parks Department and U.S. Forest Service have shown increased interest, he said.

Steve Clark of Winslow, president of the Maine club, said the 280 miles of trail in Maine, have also faced development pressures. In an effort to help protect the land he said the Maine club would seek binding agreements with landowners for trail preservation.

He was sensitive because he stuttered.

Agnello, a speech therapy professor at University of Cincinnati, has spent his life studying the disorder which, he says, afflicted Moses, Demosthenes, Jack Paar and Oral Roberts.

His specialty is the acoustics of speech, timing fluency in milliseconds for which he won a Fulbright Scholarship to Milan, Italy.

"I was a good student, a good athlete and I like to think I can think creatively," recalls the stinky, curly haired Detroit native.

"So I knew I wasn't retarded. I had no psychological problems."

Agnello says by the time a child reaches first grade, if he or she has not developed speech coordination properly, the child develops all sorts of side problems. As the child grows, mannerisms and devices are developed to avoid speaking or hide the problem.

The therapy at this point is to break these devices and convince the person that they are not needed. Then successful therapy can result, Agnello said.

He believes stuttering, a spasmodic repetition as a result of excitement or an impediment, is a coordination problem with a physiological base.

"It's like some kids can't run fast and others can. It's a matter of coordination of air, motor and phonetics," he said.

Agnello has developed a new computer device in connection with a local electronics firm called the Speech Onset Comparator (SOC).

"What we do is give the person a new way of talking...We concentrate on the person's perception of self, attitudes and beliefs as adults," about stuttering, said Agnello, who has a 98 per cent cure rate in the first two years of operation. Each year he treats about 75 persons.

This is accomplished by slowing the speech, studying the movement between vowel and consonant and having the person watch himself on video tape.

The person is drilled on his problem with the computerized SOC, a two-pound machine. As he does better, the speed increases. The machine has a television screen that records hits and misses. Time and practice are the necessary ingredients, he said.

Group therapy works best, Agnello says, because persons attending the classes get away from the feeling of aloneness with the affliction.

FASH Sets Fight Over Truck Pact

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The head of the dissident steel haulers union says his drivers will make a "determined effort" to defeat the recently negotiated pact between the Teamsters and the trucking industry.

Bill Hill, head of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers, says truckers who own their rigs were short-changed in the tentative contract.

But Hill said FASH members, who met Saturday night, decided not to strike "at this time."

The pact covers about 440,000 of the nation's truckers, most of whom are paid an hourly rate.

In a weekend press release, Hill noted that about 15,000 of them are drivers who own their rigs and lease them to trucking companies in return for a percentage of the shipping charges.

Hill said that the 75-per cent share the owner-operators got under the old contract would be cut to 72.3 per cent by the new pact.

For example, Hill said an owner-operator hauling 40,000 pounds of steel from Pittsburgh to Chicago got $336 under the old contract, and the trucking company got $112.

Under the new agreement, Hill said, the driver would get $327 and the company share would rise to $120.

"What the Teamsters have done is given the trucking firms an extra cut of the shipping charges," said Hill, whose Pittsburgh-based organization is composed of an undisclosed number of owner-operators.

Instead of being included in the Teamsters master pact, Hill favors separate contracts for independents, who would vote amongst themselves.

The high pressure system responsible for the cold air that moved into the state Sunday was to bring clear skies today.

The high responsible for the clear, cool conditions was to move through the state today, giving generally sunny skies and highs in the mid 40s north to the mid 50s south.

Clear skies tonight and lows in the upper 20s to mid 30s will present some threat of scattered frost.

More fair weather is expected Tuesday with highs returning to the upper 50s and the 60s, reflecting a return to a more southerly flow of air as the high center reaches the Carolinas.

This morning's cold approached or surpassed record lows in parts of the state. Zanesville's 21 was four degrees below the old mark for the date and temperatures equalled record lows in Toledo, with 18, and Columbus, with 21.

Rubber Union Turns Down Contract Offer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Big Four rubber companies have made their first economic offer toward a contract to replace that which expires April 20, but the United Rubber Workers quickly rejected it as too low.

A key factor in the offer presented Friday was separation of nontire work forces from those in tire plants. The companies included nothing for the nontire operations, proposing instead that such contracts be negotiated at the local plant level.

The effect would be to remove nontire workers from the master contracts, in keeping with previously expressed company intent to develop separate pay scales for tire and nontire workers in an effort to improve their nontire operations' competitive position relative to smaller, nonunion firms.

The negotiations were being conducted separately—with Uniroyal, Inc., in New York; Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. in Columbus; B.F. Goodrich Tire & Rubber Co. in Cincinnati and Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. in Cleveland. But, as is traditional, offers were virtually the same at each table.

The basic offer, detailed by sources close to the talks and confirmed by a Uniroyal spokesman, proposed hourly wage increases of $1.05 over three years, 50 cents of it in the first year and 30 cents in the second.

It also proposed an additional 15 cents per hour in the first year for skilled workers, 10 cents in the second year and none in the third.

But it made no mention of a cost-of-living adjustment, one of the "must" items listed by the URW.

For the second consecutive weekend, four persons died in traffic accidents in Ohio, the Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol keeps a count from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday.

SUNDAY

Extinguisher Sprayed Into Chief's Office

A suspicious person spotted in the hallway of the city building early Sunday morning apparently discharged a fire extinguisher into the office of Chief of Police Robert Temple.

The vandalism was discovered 9:30 p.m. Sunday by Police Capt. Jerry Smallwood, who noted that the fire extinguisher chemical was directed under the door leading into the chief's office.

Ptl. Ken Henn, working the communications system in the police department, heard sounds in the hallway of the city building 5:37 a.m. Sunday.

Investigating, he spotted a man leaving the building by way of the Court St. door. He also noticed that dry chemicals were on the floor under the fire extinguisher, and that the unit needed recharging.

Thieves took temperature and oil gauges and an ashtray from a car owned by Leland Watson, 628 S. Scioto St.

The car was parked at the Nazarene Church Sunday between 7 and 8:30 p.m.

Loss is estimated at $15.

to reassure the corporation's lenders." A former undersecretary of agriculture who was at the July 3 Pentagon meeting with Callaway said shortly after the meeting he sent a memo to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz urging the secretary to "push" the Forest Service into approving the expansion.

The former official, J. Phillip Campbell, said it was not his longtime friendship with Callaway that prompted this recommendation but because he felt the Forest Service had been dragging its feet on the request.

Butz has claimed he forwarded the memo to a subordinate and has denied any personal involvement in the matter. Butz, who has agreed to appear before the panel when he returns from a four-week world tour, said Saturday that he is eager to testify so he can also disclose the names of senators who have made requests similar to Callaway's.

Deputies Probe Accidents

Seven people were injured in two auto accidents within a mile of each other last weekend in the western portion of Pickaway County, according to Sheriff's Deputies.

Three of four people hurt in a 6:11 p.m. Saturday accident on the Locust Grove-Dublin Hill Road were admitted to Fayette Memorial Hospital, Washington C. H., for treatment of their injuries.

They are Sandra E. Norris, 27, Atlanta, who suffered severe facial lacerations, a broken jaw, and chest injuries; Mia R. Chouinard, 9, Atlanta, who suffered facial and scalp lacerations and head injuries; and Michael R. Chouinard, 8, Atlanta, who suffered facial lacerations and right leg abrasions.

Driver of the car, Ivey Y. Norris, 28, Atlanta, was treated for facial lacerations and released.

Norris, northbound on the Locust Grove — Dublin Hill Road, three-tenths of a mile south of Route 22, failed to negotiate a sharp curve in the road. The vehicle hit an oak tree and careened into a field.

Norris told deputies that the brakes on his car failed to work.

Three people were hurt in a two-car accident 3:15 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of Route 22 and 207.

Deputies said Gary L. Knisley, 28, 26 S. London St., Mt. Sterling, was southbound on Route 207 and pulled into the path of a pick-up truck driven by James A. Stauffer, 31, 215 E. Franklin St., which was headed east on Route 22.

Stauffer's truck collided with Knisley's car in the intersection.

Knisley, who was charged with failing to yield the right of way, was treated at Fayette Memorial Hospital for contusions and lacerations to his forehead and eye and multiple lacerations.

Stauffer was treated at Berger Hospital for a mild concussion and a passenger in his truck, Betty J. Stauffer, 35, 215 E. Franklin St., was treated for multiple contusions and abrasions to her left leg and scalp.

A Wheelersburg woman, 35-year-old Nancy E. Martin, was charged with reckless operation by Sheriff's Deputy Jim Fite, who investigated a two-car accident 4:15 p.m. Sunday on Route 23, three-tenths of a mile north of the Tarlton Road intersection.

Ms. Martin, injured in the accident, was treated at Berger Hospital's emergency room for multiple contusions and abrasions.

Driver of the other car involved was Austin B. Barnes, 53, Chillicothe. Passenger in his car were Eleanor Barnes, 43, Austin B. Barnes III, 10, and Norine K. Barnes, 15, all of Chillicothe.

According to Fite's report, both cars were headed south with Ms. Martin in the passing lane and Barnes in the driving lane. Barnes apparently swerved his car to the left, the deputy said, and Ms. Martin was forced off the left side of the road into the median to avoid a collision.

She then attempted to drive her car back onto the paved surface, lost control of the vehicle, and skidded into the side of Barnes' car.

Pope Cautions Against Violence

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, in a clear reference to political violence in Italy, has urged young Christians to avoid the use of force to achieve political goals.

The pontiff, in his Palm Sunday message, said Jesus was on the side of "peace and universal brotherhood.... On the other (side) is the stream of violence, division and conflict, and in the end, war."

The Pope began the day by blessing the palms and olive branches on the threshold of St. Peter's Basilica. After attending mass, he went to the window of his studio overlooking St. Peter's Square and addressed and blessed the crowd.

Giants Win Over Dodgers

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

The National League seems to have found both a new franchise and a new city in San Francisco.

The Giants, who all but put the final signatures on a transfer agreement to Toronto earlier this year, have found new money in owners Bud Hereth and Robert Lurie and now new legions of supporters from the Bay Area.

Rain washed out Saturday's game but Friday's and Sunday's games with the Los Angeles Dodgers drew a total of 64,920 fans. That figure represents nearly one-eighth of last year's dismal season turnout in San Francisco of 522,919.

And the fans, rewarded by a season-opening victory Friday and a come-from-behind 6-4 triumph Sunday, came despite a strike of the city's craft workers that brought pickets around Candlestick Park and virtually eliminated the stadium's concession stands.

Elsewhere in the National League, the world champion Cincinnati Reds stayed unbeaten with a 9-3 victory over the winless Houston Astros; the Pittsburgh Pirates, the unbeaten defending NL East winners, stopped the Philadelphia Phillies 8-3; the Montreal Expos edged the New York Mets 7-6; the Atlanta Braves beat the San Diego Padres 4-2, and the Chicago Cubs downed the St. Louis Cardinals 8-5.

This opening series between the West Coast rivals, who brought California into the baseball business, was the first since the pioneering days of 1958, when the national pastime first came to San Francisco.

Spurs Beat N.Y. Nets; Win 105-79

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Instead of deflating the San Antonio Spurs, the loss of star guard James Silas seemed to inflate them.

In fact, the Spurs were flying so high they were able to bounce back from a crushing defeat Friday night and square their American Basketball Association series at one game apiece with a 105-79 victory over the New York Nets Sunday.

"Everybody thought we would collapse because we lost James Silas," said Bob Bass, San Antonio's coach. "It intensified the team and got them to play a little tighter."

Silas, who had scored 2,000 points during the regular season, is expected to be lost for the remainder of this best-of-seven series. He was on crutches Sunday after suffering a chipped fracture of the right ankle during the Nets' 116-101 triumph Friday night.

The loss of Silas forced Bass to insert George Gervin at guard and move Coby Dietrick to forward. Dietrick drew the assignment of guarding Nets superstar Julius Erving. Larry Kenon had guarded Erving on Friday night.

"That means I didn't have to work as hard at both ends of the court," Kenon said.

Kenon, a former Net, certainly was effective at the offensive end of the floor, tossing in 30 points and joining with Billy Paultz, another former Net, to sink New York. Paultz scored 20 points and grabbed a game-high 18 rebounds.

Pinch hitter Dave Rader slammed a two-out two-run double to cap a four-run eighth inning that made a loser of relief specialist Mike Marshall.

Pirates 8, Phillies 3

By just walking to the mound this year, Bob Moose may qualify for the "Comeback Player of the Year" award.

Moose, who saved Pittsburgh's victory over the Phillies Sunday, missed most of the 1974 season because of surgery for the removal of a blood clot under his right shoulder. Surgeons had to take out his top right rib to get the job done.

Moose, who spent part of the 1975 season in the minors working his arm back into shape, relieved starter Bruce Kison in the sixth inning and blanked the Phillies the rest of the way.

Richie Zisk and Rennie Stennett led the Pirates attack, each driving in two runs. Thus, the Pirates took the first two games of this intense Pennsylvania series between the two, favorites for the NL East title.

Reds 9, Astros 3

The Reds and Astros continued their form of last season. The world champion Reds swept the three-game series with the Astros, who had the worst record in the National League in 1975.

Pat Darcy, extending the major league's longest individual winning streak to 10, pitched no-hit ball for five innings before giving up two walks and a single in the sixth and giving way to

Messersmith With Braves

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The new guy, the millionaire, sat on the bench next to some of his less affluent teammates.

The attitude of those Atlanta Braves making a mere $50,000 or so might have been one of resentment toward the newest Brave, Andy Messersmith, but they welcomed him with open arms over the weekend.

"It was like a spiritual thing when we found out Andy was coming with us," said Lee Lacy, a teammate of Messersmith with Los Angeles last season.

"We had thought we were out of the bidding," said Lacy, who came to the Braves via the traditional route, a winter trade. "You can't believe how happy everyone is about our getting him."

"Andy's got to boost our morale and make us a better club."

Teammate Rowland Office agreed, saying of Messersmith, "He should give us another 15 or 20 wins this year."

The 30-year-old Messersmith, who'd been declared a free agent during the offseason after winning 19 games without a contract for the Dodgers last year, ended a long search for a new team Saturday when he came to terms with the Braves.

Long Jump Mark Shattered By Bell

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Soft-spoken Todd Bell, a minister's son who prays before every leap, said only, "The Lord helped me," in his record-shattering long jump performance in the Mansfield-Meck high school track relays Saturday.

The Middletown High School junior obviously wasn't lacking in incentive when he sailed a foot farther than he ever had before in eclipsing a 43-year-old record held by famed Olympian Jesse Owens to win the event with a jump of 25 feet, 5 inches.

reliever Pat Zachry.

Pete Rose, also true to form, led the Reds' attack with four hits to become the NL's alltime leader in career hits. Rose, who has hit in his last 17 games stretching back to last season and who is 9 for 15 this season, has a career total of 2,556 hits, moving him past Lou Brock of St. Louis.

Expos 7, Mets 6

Nate Colbert drove in two runs with a homer and a single and Bombo Rivera knocked in two more with a double to give new Montreal Manager Karl Kuehl his first major league victory.

Mickey Lolich, long-time mainstay of the Detroit Tigers, had an unsuccessful National League debut. He lasted just two innings, gave up three runs, made two errors and took the loss.

Braves 4, Padres 2

Pitcher Dick Ruthven drove in three runs with a pair of bases-loaded singles and gave up two runs in five innings to get credit for the victory. Roger Moret relieved in the sixth and Pablo Torrealba blanked the Padres over the final three innings.

Cubs 8, Cards 5

Bill Madlock's run-scoring single broke a 5-5 ninth-inning tie and Andy Thornton and Steve Swisher delivered sacrifice flies to complete the three-run rally.

Aces Take Twinbill

Amanda Clearcreek took both ends of a double header from Millersport Saturday on the Aces' diamond.

The Aces captured the first tilt, 12-2, behind the five hit pitching of Doug Starnier and took the second game on a three hit effort, 3-0, by Jim Smith.

Mark Bitler and Jim Destadio led the attack in the first game while Mike Cassill slammed a two-run double to grab the second tilt.

Amanda-Clearcreek is now 6-2 overall and 1-2 in Mid State. They will host Logan Elm 4:30 p.m. today.

Ray Floyd Wins Masters Tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — At the end, it was the man against the monster, and the monster fell.

Ray Floyd, bull-strong and bull-whip-tough, grabbed the sprawling Augusta National course by the nape of the neck and literally shook it into submission, winning the 40th Masters Golf Tournament by a record-tying score.

The great Jack Nicklaus, like everybody else, wound up being a spectator, finishing 11 shots off the pace. Floyd led every round. The glamorous event became a dull one-man show. It was a onesome and a fortythreesome.

Floyd's winning score was 65-66-70-271, 17 under par. It tied Nicklaus' 1965 record.

Only one man made a serious lunge at him and it proved too little too late. Hollywood-handsome Ben Crenshaw, 24, brightest of the game's "Young Lions," charged in with a closing 67, highlighted by a gambling eagle on the 13th and pirate-bold par on the long 15th from the water, to take second money with 279, eight strokes back. Floyd collected $40,000, Crenshaw $25,000.

Nicklaus, recognized as undisputed king of the game with 16 major crowns, never mustered a rally in defense of the title he grabbed for the fifth time so dramatically a year ago. His birdie fire only flickering, he struggled in with a 73 to tie Larry Ziegler for third at 282. Only four other players bettered par.

Floyd, a handsome, 33-year-old veteran of 15 years on the tour whose early years were wasted on what he called high living, said winning the 1976 Masters was the primary goal of his restructured life.

"I wish I had my early years to live over again," he said of the days when he trained on hard booze and all-night parties. "I would have won more. I got tired of being a mediocre player. Now my goal is to win golf tournaments and the apex, naturally, is to win the majors."

Logan Elm Splits Twinbill With Washington C.H.

Logan Elm split a twinbill with visiting Washington C. H. Saturday, losing the first game 10-2 but coming from behind to win the second, 13-10.

Tony Crist went all the way in the opener for the braves, fanning eight, walking one and allowing 13 hits.

The Blue Lions scored two runs in the second inning, two in the third, five in the fourth and one in the fifth, while Logan Elm's only two runs came in the bottom of the fourth.

For Washington, Dean went all the way, fanning three, walking two and allowing Logan Elm only six hits. In the first game Rob Black collected two singles, Randy Pontius and Jeff Reichelderfer each doubled, Jerry Scanlan and Mike Davis both singled.

"The kids showed what they are made of in the second game," LE coach Vic Pontius reported. "They were down 8-2 and battled back to win it."

Washington scored three runs in the top of the first inning and added five in the second while LE was producing only a pair in the bottom of the first.

In the Braves' third inning rally, Pontius led off with a walk and then scored on Reichelderfer's Double. Chuck Cave singled in Reichelderfer, Black smashed a two-run homer, then Mike Davis singled, scored on Mark Skinner's single and Jerry Scanlan walloped a two-run homer.

Washington back on top 10-9 with a two-run fourth inning, but the Braves rallied again in the bottom of the fifth.

With one out Scanlan singled, moved to second on an error and then scored on a single by Pontius. Reichelderfer reached on an error, and Cave and Black singled, scoring Pontius. Reichelderfer then scored on Tim Fouch's single.

The Braves added an insurance run in the sixth on an error, a stolen base and two wild pitches.

Mike Johnston came on in relief of Steve Rawlins in the fifth inning with one out and shut the Blue Lions out the rest of the way. They combined for six strikeouts, walked three and were touched for 12 hits.

Hitting for the Braves in the second game were Fouch and Davis with singles, Cave with two singles, Reichelderfer with a single and a double, Skinner with a single and a double, Scanlan with a single, a double and a homerun, Pontius with two singles and a double and Black with three singles and a homerun.

Black tied a school record Saturday when he got his seventh consecutive hit in the last game of the twinbill. Six of those seven hits came on Saturday.

Logan Elm has 5-5 record and is 2-1 in the Mid State League. The Braves play at Amanda-Clearcreek tonight.

FOR TUESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Chance could very well step in now and hand you, on the proverbial silver platter, what all your striving couldn't attain. A fine day!

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): It would be wise to keep plans flexible. Certain changes of circumstance may call for sudden improvisation.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Fine Mercury influences spur incentive, stimulate good ideas - many of which may be distinctly novel. Capitalize on all during this good period.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Be patient if you encounter delays and obstacles to your plans, but don't bring them on yourself through vacillation, irresolution. Step forward with confidence.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Someone may advance a get-rich-quick scheme. Size him up thoroughly before you even listen. A "sensational" gain now could prove costly later.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Your innate artistry and gift for projecting the unusual that has intrinsic merit stand out as winners here. Others can profit by your exceptional know-how.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Something you hear may cause you to suspect a bit of backstage maneuvering, but don't let it lessen your self-confidence. Keep going as you planned and ignore rumors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Financial matters governed by generous influences. You can now pull off a deal which once seemed hopeless.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): A few "surprises" likely - some which will please, others which may not. Take the bad with the good, in your usual philosophic manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't be disappointed if a planned trip is called off. It could be for the best. Evening social activities promise to be enlivening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't be too quick to arrive at conclusions and, even after some thought, review again. Misinterpretation of certain situations could prove costly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Your planets in fine configuration. Seek top-flight investments for your money, time and talents. A rewarding day if you play your cards right.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine intellect, a dynamic personality and unusual versatility. You are a naturally curious individual (would make an outstanding reporter or detective), but your curiosity is not of the petty, prying type. With family, friends and associates, you are inclined to be exceptionally tolerant, to take a "live and let live" attitude. Your desire to "know" is a scholarly, investigative one - a great asset in many professions. There are many fields in which you can succeed, but notably as a business executive (if you restrain a tendency toward "bossiness"), a lawyer, statesman, scientist (medicine especially) or, in the art world, as a writer, painter, musician, theatrical performer. Legislative Report

By MYRL SHOEMAKER,
State Representative
88th House District

Victims of crime would receive compensation from the state if legislation pending in the Ohio General Assembly is enacted. The crime victim compensation legislation, House Bill 82, sponsored by Springfield Representative David Hartley, was passed 88 to 8 Wednesday by the House of Representatives and sent to the Senate for review and consideration.

The bill would establish a comprehensive system for the payment of compensation for economic loss suffered by crime victims, by persons who aid victims or law enforcement officers, or by dependents of such persons. Economic loss would be limited to allowable expense (i.e. medical or rehabilitation care), income loss and replacement services loss, and if the crime victim died as a result of the offense, it would include dependent's economic and replacement services loss.

The bill would create three court of claims commissioners who would have exclusive jurisdiction to make compensation awards for injuries suffered as a result of certain crimes. The commissioners would be experienced attorneys appointed by the Ohio Supreme Court and could serve at the pleasure of the Supreme Court. The court of claims commissioners would usually hear claims for compensation awards in Columbus, unless hardship or justice dictates otherwise.

Under the provisions of House Bill 82, a claim for an award would be commenced by filing an application in the common pleas court within one year of the crime. The application would be forwarded by the common pleas court to the court of claims and the State Attorney General.

The Attorney General would then investigate the claim and make a finding of fact and recommendation for the claim. Claims would be investigated carefully; no claims would be paid simply on the basis of the application forms submitted.

After the Attorney General's report, the claim would be assigned to one of the three court of claims commissioners. A single commissioner would hear each claim or could determine the claim without a hearing if the claimant accepts the Attorney General's finding and recommendation. If the claimant objects to the Attorney General's recommendation, the claim would be heard by all three court of claims commissioners and determined by a majority vote of the commissioners.

The bill would require that the total amount of any award could not exceed $50,000 and could be payable as a lump sum or by installments. Additionally, the claimant or the Attorney General could appeal any decision by the court of claims commissioners.

To date, thirteen states have enacted programs to reimburse victims of crime. California led the way by adopting such a program in 1965; since then Alaska, New York, Hawaii, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Illinois, Delaware, Nevada, North Dakota, Washington, and Rhode Island have also passed similar legislation. The United States Congress is also considering crime victim compensation legislation.

Criminal victim compensation programs are justified on the premise that the present criminal justice system ignores, even victimizes the victim. It is incongruous that millions of dollars are spent to prevent crime, to prosecute and convict criminals, and to incarcerate criminals, yet the victims of crime are abandoned to cope with their own losses and injuries.

Set Lakes Survey

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration says it plans to establish a Great Lakes Regional Center in Ann Arbor.

The center will launch a five-year survey to update Great Lakes nautical charts.

The agency frequently has been criticized in the past for failing to take account of the Great Lakes region in its operations.

Officials at the oceanic administration in Washington say the latest effort will include installing more radar weather detectors and an automatic flood alarm system.

Plans also call for upgrading the network of water level gauges throughout the Great Lakes region.

An Ohio company was formed in Chillicothe in 1833 for importing English pedigreed cattle. Nineteen head of pedigreed Shorthorns were shipped to Philadelphia and driven overland to Chillicothe where they arrived in October, 1834. Other consignments followed to establish blooded stock on Ohio farms.
